

Jack Bowles is an Investment Director within the Sustainable Investment team at Schroders. His role is focused on advising both clients and investment teams on the integration of sustainability issues into their investment process, with a particular focus on climate and regulation. Jack joined Schroders in 2020 from EY, where he supported clients across the UK and Europe on the integration of ESG into the investment process. He holds a First Class degree in Biomedical Science from The University of Manchester.